St. Valentine's Day Massacre

2-12/14-82, The Barony of An Crosaire presents their anniversary event St. Valentine's Day Massacre. 'Tis time to relax at Otter Spring once again. Be Warned - it may be verry cold. (Yes, the squirrel was really frozen). We will gather together to eat Saturday even' with a hot possett provided. Each brings their food. The Traditional list will be at 10 of the clock on Saturday, with the Victor receiving suitable acclaim. Folk are encouraged to bring their handiwork for the Arts & Sciences Exposition. Those who wish may enter one item to be juried by experts in the presence of the entrants following the guidelines (point system for judging) as published in the December Trimaric Calendar. The theme for the juried items is "Accessories." Anything one can attach to, hang on, or wear with a garment, any garment - court, camp or field, excepting only the garment itself. This is not a competition - it is an exposition. The juried portion is a workshop in how A&S competitions are judged. The juries will be lead by Lady Damara and Lord Holtmar. Autocrating group being Hospitaller's of Vynecorne's Hospice. Talewinds, Vol.1, no 1, AS XVI

Blackthorne's historian reported that Morgana handled the event registrations, Ravenna and Morgan brought items for the juried exposition, and Lady Elspeth helped judge the exposition entrants and Lady Elspeth and Fither sang at Bardic Circle.

Domesday Report for the Sciences, 1982, from the Minister of Sciences, Lord Holtmar of Wyrhtenatun

Barony of An Crosaire: Members of the barony have done extremely well in the science competitions, especially at Kingdom Arts & Sciences where they collected more points jointly than any other group, thus winning the right to host next years fair. The tradition of biweekly classes is being maintained, with courses in subjects ranging from amber, period trencher ware, medieval cooking and subtleties. Several members also contributed to the Trimaris Arts & Sciences publication Triskele, as well as the baronial issue of Talewinds. They have held several demos at schools and museums and will be aiding a campus group at UF to produce a Renaissance Faire. Except for summers, the Barony is extremely busy during the year.
